After the BBC launched its "Ask Me Anything" series, TikTok released videos that featured celebrities such as Tyler Oakley, Michelle Phan, Rohan Nadkarni and Prince Royce. The videos were branded with BBC's logo and linked to the channel on the app. The company also introduced new features such as interactive filters and Facebook Live support so that users would be able to stream live and chat with their viewers on the app. The company allowed British users to register using a British phone number and no longer required people to verify their account with a government-issued identification card. In an interview with "The Drum", TikTok's head of brand, Alex Hofmann, said that the company was working on becoming more accessible in other countries by making it easier to sign up and easier for users to find content that they are interested in. In an interview with "Digital Trends", Hofmann added that the company would be bringing the app to places such as Punjab and Kerala where he felt there was a strong internet presence. In early October 2021, TikTok released its Android app in Mexico. The app was launched after a partnership with Telcel. Telcel announced that they would be using the app to show user-generated content in their free time slot. In addition, the company said that the app would be available through free download on their website as well as certain partner websites. The company later added support for Spanish along with an automatic translation option so that users could still use the app despite not being able to speak or read it. On October 15, 2021, TikTok was released in Australia and New Zealand under the name "Musically". The company stated that they wanted the new name to reflect their goal of giving everyone a platform to express themselves in their own unique way. The company also announced that they would be continuing to improve the app by adding features such as a dark mode and a feed for creators to share their work with their audience.", TikTok was initially launched in February of 2021 by a guy named Evan Spiegel together with an ex-entrepreneur named Bobby Murphy and the app was then acquired by tech giant Snap Inc. in April of 2021. Many people have become new users thanks to its ability to allow users to share their own videos, short videos, and more while answering viewers' specific questions and sharing advice on how to live life better. It's been reported that the userbase has increased massively since July 5th, where it reached over 100 million monthly users worldwide. The app is now recognized as one of the biggest social media apps in the world alongside other popular social media apps such as Facebook. By the end of August, Spiegel removed a number of Twitter and Facebook-like features (emotions, likes, photos) from the app in order to make it more suitable for its users.",

In October 2021 TikTok partnered with Amazon to allow its users to upload their music videos to its Amazon Video Direct platform for monetization purposes through the Amazon Loudr service. Loudr is Amazon's music discovery service for streaming and sale.",

In December 2021, the company announced plans to launch a new feature called "TikTok Studio". This feature would allow users to create their own music videos. It was launched in June 2021 with Sony Music and Universal Music Group as a part of the app's expanded release in India. The feature also integrates with Record Labels such as Jingle Punks, Spinnin' Records, Monstercat and Deorro's Deoretik. The feature is available as part of the application on iPhone and Android devices.", Headquarters: Shanghai, China, San Francisco, United States of America Marketing (formerly branded as "Musical.ly for Brands") Investors: Baidu Inc., Lightspeed China Partners, Sequoia Capital, Tencent Holdings Ltd., SV Angel, Warner Music Group Corp Musical.ly was ranked by "Forbes" as the 36th most powerful company in entertainment in 2021. The brand was valued at over $800 million in 2021 according to "Forbes" and has raised $110 million in venture funding from investors including Baidu Inc.",

In May 2021, Musical.ly announced an alternative brand for its European market with "Musical.ly Fancast", which presents music videos and sometimes also live performances featuring popular artists in addition to the usual platform features available to all users of the app worldwide. Musicians featured in these videos include Gwen Stefani, Avicii, Adam Lambert, Rihanna and Little Mix; some of these musicians also use their own customised musical.ly cameras.",

In February 2021, it was also reported that some TikTok users who had provided their contact details for verification purposes had received a notification stating that their mobile number would be used by ByteDance for promotional purposes starting February 8, 2021. Meanwhile, others were receiving messages stating that their name would not be allowed to appear next to ByteDance's logo. Because of the fact that there appears to be no clear statement on how people are allowed to opt out of these types of promotional schemes, many have had a negative reaction to them. The following is an example screenshot of a comment by someone who was trying to upload a video with their contact details:",

In an article published by The New York Times, it was alleged that "Bytedance is one of China's most successful start-up companies, with the two apps under its belt " Toutiao and Musical.ly " each boasting more than 100 million users globally." This article was published on The New York Times. In an article published by TechCrunch, it was alleged that "Bytedance is one of the key players in China's internet industry. The company runs three of the country's top 10 internet properties in terms of monthly time spent by Chinese users " news aggregator Jinri Toutiao (known as TopBuzz outside of China), video app TikTok (known as Musical.ly outside of China), and question-and-answer platform Zhihu." This article was published on TechCrunch.",

This is considered by some experts to be unfair because it requires subscribers (which are estimated to be over 100 million) to pay just so they can be allowed to post their own content onto the platform. The fact that this feature can be used to prevent people from sharing content which they should be allowed to post has also concerned some users. Another concern with this particular aspect of TikTok's business model is that it may be a violation of the app's terms and conditions as well as the policies of any app stores where TikTok is installed. To access TikTok, a user must agree to the app's terms and conditions when they have downloaded it onto their device. For example, users on both Google Play and the Apple Store agree not only to allow TikTok to access their location but also "to use your name, likeness, and voice in connection with commercial, sponsored or related content ("endorsements"), either identified or anonymous. You agree that if you wish for your Content to remain anonymous, or your public profile does not contain your real name, you will not use your real name in connection with any Endorsements." This suggests that a user may be required to pay in order to retain their anonymity while posting videos on TikTok (this is because the app may ask them to use their real name and/or add other details such as their age while posting their video). The term "endorsement" (as defined by the Oxford dictionary) means: "the action of publicly expressing approval and support of somebody/something by a gesture (such as a wave or an item of clothing) or words. The act of publicly advertising a product or service by an individual or organization.""

The primary difference between Tencent's WeChat and ByteDance's Toutiao is that the former has yet to capitalize on the addictive nature of short-form videos, whereas the latter has. TikTok " the latter's new acquisition " is a comparatively more simple app than its parent company, but it does fit in well with Tencent's previous acquisition of Meitu, which is perhaps better known for its beauty apps.",

In March 2021, Linius Technologies filed a lawsuit against Musical.ly for trademark infringement. Linius Technologies claimed that the word "musical" in Musical.ly's name was too similar to their trademark, and Musical.ly had to change their name or its domain name. In June 2021, Musical.ly announced that they would no longer use the word "musical" in their name and would instead shorten it to just "Musical". Lytro Cameras also filed a lawsuit against the company in June 2021 for trademark infringement. In August 2021, Linius Technologies filed a request to have Musical.ly removed from the Google Play Store which was denied by Google on November 9, 2021 with Google stating that because musical.ly wasn't using the word "Musical" in their name (previously Musically), it could not be taken down from the app store.",

Due to TikTok's popularity on social media, other companies are following in its footsteps. Snapchat parent company Snap Inc., for example, recently rolled out its own musical.ly clone called "Stories. It was designed with an older audience â€œ teens and young adults â€œ in mind, and has features that differentiate it from TikTok, including the ability to add music to videos.",

In an article published by The New York Times, it was alleged that "A class-action lawsuit filed against the app in January alleges that it discriminates against users based on ethnicity and gender, charges which TikTok denies." This article was published on The New York Times. In an article published by TechCrunch, it was alleged that "The Chinese social media giant announced the sale of $1.3 billion in shares to investors including the sovereign wealth fund China Life. This comes a little over a month after it went public in the U.S., raising $1 billion at a valuation of $25 billion." This article was published on TechCrunch.",

The original founders view themselves as being able to build something that will help people through their day. With this goal in mind, they developed a standalone app which focusses on short-form video. The initial idea for the app came from a project called Vine, owned by Twitter. In an interview with the Los Angeles Times in November 2021, co-founder and CEO of Twitter Jack Dorsey said he was focusing on creativity at the company: "We want to look at every part of our service that enables people to express themselves. We believe it's better for the world if more people are expressing themselves." Evan Spiegel then took this idea and turned it into a company called "TikTok".",

In July 2021, TikTok came under heavy criticism for adding a filter to their video function that made black people look like dolls. The company did not take the filter down until pressure from Twitter users. The Twitter account of TikTok was also hacked in September 2021 after many people tweeted with "#FreeTikTok". After the account was returned to normal, all the hashtag tweets were deleted.",

It isn't clear if Toutiao can maintain its pace of growth, even with a major acquisition like TikTok under its belt. While Toutiao is top-of-mind when discussing viral news feeds, it remains a relatively niche product at least compared to WeChat and other messaging apps run by Tencent.",

In April 2021, it was reported that TikTok had reached a deal with Tencent in order to launch a new business model which would allow the app's users in China to apply for micro-loans provided by Tencent's own Weixin Pay as long as they created content on TikTok. This service was set to launch in the second half of 2021.",
